LEARN THE "SCIENCE"
OF MOVEMENT CONTROL
IN MASONRY WALLS

For the past three years, we have been offering MSA members an informative series of slide programs on various aspects of masonry design and construction. Of these programs -- and there are now 12 of them in all -- the one covering "Movement Control in Masonry Walls" is by far the most frequently requested.

That comes as no surprise. The return to insulated masonry walls, particularly cavity walls, places added importance on movement control considerations. Yet for years, the "state of the art" in properly locating expansion joints, control joints and reinforcing wire has been just that -- an art. Now, however, that art is rapidly becoming a science...and we are able to provide solid engineering data to help you make better-informed decisions in this area.

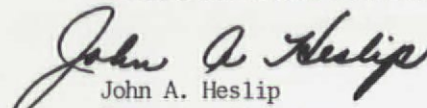

So the program on movement control would be a good place to get your staff started on this Masonry Institute series. Here are the programs available:

- Brick as a building material.
- Concrete masonry as a building material.
- Selecting mortars for masonry construction.
- Selecting and sizing masonry walls to resist fire.
- MOVEMENT CONTROL IN MASONRY WALLS.
- Weatherproofing masonry walls.
- Nonreinforced and partially reinforced masonry wall design.
- Energy conservation through masonry.
- Cold weather masonry construction.
- Sound control with masonry.
- Contemporary masonry bearing wall design.
- Efflorescence and cleaning of masonry walls.

It's everything you always wanted to know about masonry in a series of one-hour mini-courses. And all 12 programs are continuously updated to provide the latest available information. So take advantage of us and our expanded staff. Call the Institute office at (313) 553-2080 -- or tear out and mail this page -- to order the program or programs of your choice shown in your office at a time you select by a member of the Institute staff. We want you to know more about masonry.

Sincerely,

MASONRY INSTITUTE OF MICHIGAN

John A. Heslip
Executive Director

MSA . . . NEWS

TO ALL MSA MEMBERS:

Concern has been expressed to the MSA Board from several chapters regarding the financial condition of the Society. It is my intention to give an in depth treasurer's report at the Midsummer Conference in August and again at the State Convention in October. In the meantime it seems appropriate to report on one issue, a possible dues increase, in advance of the Midsummer Conference.

While there is not now any proposal to increase dues, it is, of course, inevitable. We have not had an increase in eleven years - which is something of a record. The size of the increase, when there is one, depends on four things:

1. MSA's ability to make the Bulletin at least break even. If a reasonable share of the salaries and overhead is allocated against all publication expenses we are currently operating with an annual deficit of about $8.00 or $10 per member per year. We must find ways to increase revenue and decrease expenses so that it may be possible to avoid a dues increase at least as it relates to publications.
2. The Beaubien House Purchase. The fund raising must succeed. We need roughly $120,000 by April 1980. Less than half of this has been pledged to date. If we succeed and do purchase Beaubien House we will be able to reduce operating costs by at least as much as the current total operating deficit of about $7,000. Beaubien House now costs us less than $1,200 per month rent (including heat, utilities and taxes) which is paid to the Michigan Architectural Foundation who in turn pay on the land contract. 40% of our land contract payments is credited to the purchase price. Incidentally, the MSA rent to MAF including it's share of heat, utilities and taxes works out to be less than $5.00 per square foot on the gross floor area - less than $8.00 per square foot on the net area of the five assignable rooms.
3. New Programs Under Consideration. MSA is looking at the economic feasibility of publishing a monograph series on various topics. It has the potential of producing income over the long run. In the short run it will require seed money. Some modest commitments have been to date, but major commitments may be required. Other MSA programs in the area of continuing education, public relations and professional services need to be funded as well. Members will have an opportunity to express their views on these and other activities at the 1979 Convention.

4. Staff Salaries. Not including the editor whose salary is an expense against publications income, all other salaries are budgeted for 1979 at $69,000 which includes payroll taxes. The staff consists of the executive director, assistant, bookkeeper and receptionist/typist. 20% of this total is paid by the Detroit Chapter and 10% is allocated to publications.

To Summarize: Our present dues structure will not support the activities of the society very far into the 1980's. If we are able to make our publications effort break even and if we are able to purchase the Beaubien House we will go a long way toward making MSA's financial condition fiscally sound. That we can continue to develop and expand member services and adequately compensate our staff without a dues increase seems highly unlikely. Members should be prepared to discuss these issues at the Midsummer Conference and The State Convention in October.

WHITE TOWERS by Paul Hirshorn and Steven Izenour (17.50)

White Tower, the pioneering hamburger chain founded in 1926, depended on its instantly recognizable building to say it all - those gleamingly white ("clean"), well-lighted ("always open"), streamlined ("fast and efficient"), humanly scaled ("friendly") structures were three-dimensional bill-boards for themselves. Now you can trace the evolution of an iconography, an example of architecture symbolism, over the last half-century. This book focuses on the subtly changing styles of a prototypical chain of small shops that appeared, uniformly clad, over much of the country.

Both authors are practicing architects in Philadelphia. (190 pages)

ARCHITECTURAL SIGNING AND GRAPHICS by John Follis and Dave Hammer (32.50).

This highly illustrated handbook, written by one of the first architects to specialize in this emerging design discipline, John Follis, and his associate Dave Hammer, provides the detailed, practical information needed to create a total signing and graphics system for any environment. It investigates ways to integrate signing into architecture and establishes guidelines for solving esthetic and functional problems. (232 pages)

THE PASSIVE SOLAR ENERGY BOOK by Edward Mazria (24.95)

This book presents a clear format of the fundamental concepts of passive design and application, as well as the numbers and mathematical equations necessary for performance calculations. The book describes materials and ideas simply, with many stunning illustrations and photographs. The text is presented for quick understanding; bold type and regular print each highlighting different areas.

The author is an architect in Albuquerque, New Mexico.

PROCESS: ARCHITECTURE Number 4 February 1978 by Process Architecture Publishing Co., Ltd., Tokyo and Lawrence Halprin (19.95)

Process is a beautiful paperback written in English and Japanese. This issue covers the work of Lawrence Halprin including graphics and his design philosophy. (262 pages)

. VICTORIAN AND EDWARDIAN THEATRES: AN ARCHITECTURAL AND SOCIAL SURVEY by Victor Glasstone (17.50).

Theatre design, a fascinating and highly specialized architectural form, reached a high point in Great Britain in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. In this richly illustrated volume, Victor Glasstone displays the theatres, opera houses, and music halls of the age and shows how the lavish Victorian-Edwardian style of theatre architecture evolved, flourished, and finally declined. (136 pages)

. STARTING AND MANAGING YOUR OWN ENGINEERING PRACTICE by John Kuecken (12.95).

This is the first all-inclusive handbook written specifically for the engineering professional who wants to establish a successful private practice. Drawing on his years of practical experience, John Kuecken gives you a no-nonsense approach that will help you anticipate potential problems, minimize your risks and maximize your chances for success. (175 pages)

. MANAGEMENT: TASKS, RESPONSIBILITIES, PRACTICES by Peter F. Drucker (18.95).

Peter Drucker is well-known for his writing about business and management. This book is a study of management as an organized body of knowledge. It not only deals with the techniques of effective management but looks at management from the outside and studies its tasks and requirements. The emphasis is on the accomplishments and results that are needed, including all areas of concern that managers will have to deal with. (839 pages)

. PIONEER CHURCHES by Harold Kalman (27.50).

Fashioned from logs with crude tools or built to exacting architectural standards, the pioneer churches of North America offer a unique perspective on the history of the continent's expansion. With each new wave of settlement, the men and women who pushed forward the frontiers of civilization expressed their now vanished lifestyles, their cultures, their crafts, their anxieties, motivations, and ideals in buildings that served as a focus for community and a centre for devotion. Examples of these churches are preserved in this striking and authoritative volume. (192 pages)

. FOR PEDESTRIANS ONLY: PLANNING, DESIGN, AND MANAGEMENT OF TRAFFIC-FREE ZONES by Roberto Brambilla and Gianni Longo (24.95).

Creating appealing urban spaces that invite people to stroll, shop, or sit is a concept at least as old as the hanging gardens of Babylon. But structuring city centers that also eliminate all the noise, pollution, and turmoil of today's traffic is a relatively recent concern. This appraisal of traffic-free zoning in 20 European and North American cities provides, for the first time, a comprehensive study of that complex process. By summarizing and analyzing what has been achieved, the book offers architects, professionals in urban planning and design, municipal authorities, and community leaders a resource to guide future efforts to make cities more habitable for people. (208 pages)

. RUNNING AN OFFICE FOR FUN AND PROFIT by Rosslyn F. Foote (15.00).

This is a basic how-to book for that 75 percent of the profession that has been pretty much overlooked: the small practitioner. The author states, "I believe that the most important goal in professional life should be to enjoy what you're doing. The only way you can do so is to plan the financial side of your practice and get yourself organized." This book plainly shows ways to get yourself organized. (116 pages)
